The meeting was called to order by ASUM President Greg Henderson at 6:11 p.m. in the Montana Rooms.

Last Week's Minutes - Stand approved.

President's Report

1. Thanked all of those who worked on OUTREACH.
2. Sid Thomas would like to meet with Central Board members at 3 p.m. on Friday, December 9 in the Conference Room.
3. Make sure you have your address and phone number for the Christmas break in the ASUM office before you leave.
4. Come in the office and let us know if you are planning on attending the Board of Regents Meeting in Helena and if you are leaving on Sunday or Monday.
5. There have been letters coming into the office in response to the letter writing campaign. Many different comments.

Vice President's Report

Will wait until next year to give the committee status reports and to fill the remaining positions.

Henderson said there will be an executive session at the beginning of next quarter.

Business Manager's Report

Budget and Finance Committee approved the following fund balance expenditures:

Special Allocations

Montana Masquers	$2,700
------------------	---------

Steve Wing, representative of Montana Masquers, read a letter from the members of Montana Masquers. Another member of Montana Masquers talked for their group in support of this $2,700 allocation.

HUNTINGTON MOVED TO PUT MONTANA MASQUERS SPECIAL ALLOCATION OF $2,700 ON THE FLOOR.

STEVENS SECOND

Olson, who chaired Budget and Finance Committee last night, explained the reasons why Budget and Finance did not recommend giving Montana Masquers the special allocation of $2,700.

MEGEE AMENDMENT TO GIVE MONTANA MASQUERS $1,500.

MOTION PASSES UNANIMOUSLY

The chair passes the gavel to Mansfield.

Henderson, at this time while the rules are still suspended, asked for a special allocation of $100 for the Students to be used to help defray the costs to Helena for the Board of Regents Meeting.

Huntington second.

Those driving to Helena should bring their gas receipts into ASUM to be reimbursed.

Vote on special allocation of $100
SPECIAL ALLOCATION PASSES.

Tom Jacobson, representing Students for Justice, talked about the resolution supporting the moratorium on classes this Thursday.

The chair requests to accept this resolution.
Huntington so moved.

Vote on Part 1 only.
Yelich, please read it.
Henderson read part 1 to Central Board.

PART 1 PASSES UNANIMOUSLY

Vote on Part 2.
PART 2 PASSES UNANIMOUSLY

This will become one resolution in its entirety.

The resolution reads as follows:

The Students for Justice submit this proposal to the Central Board of ASUM. We feel, that in mutual agreement and cooperation on the points in the resolution, ASUM and the Students for Justice can further aid the university in its struggle to forestall pending faculty cuts.

We ask that you -

1. Support the idea of declaring a moratorium on classes which should not be construed as a student strike but as an enthusiastic support measure this Thursday beginning at 11:55 a.m. and lasting no later than 3:00 p.m.

- a. to allow all students to express both unity and dissatisfaction with the issue of faculty cuts, and in the sense that a huge crowd in the demonstration will further exhibit to President that he has most university students in opposition to any action he may take in implementing "last-hired first-fired."
2. Join with us in figuring out and putting into action any effective means both groups deem necessary and viable to both inform students of the nature and importance of the 19:1 student/faculty ratio and convince students to take extra credits next quarter to boost our present student/faculty ratio to 19:1 without cutting any teachers.

MCKENZIE MOTION TO PASS RESOLUTION SUPPORTING THE PETITION.
HEALD SECOND.

The resolution reads as follows:

BE IT RESOLVED that the Central Board of the Associated Students of the University of Montana, finds it necessary to actively pursue a petition drive which condemns the use of the last-in first-out method for faculty reduction in excess of the recommendation of the Academic Program Review Committee.

MOTION PASSES UNANIMOUSLY

Campus Information in Action

Conrad and G. Jacobson talked about getting information to the people in the dorms about taking more classes and just what the faculty cuts would mean to them as students.

Had to check with Residence Halls before circulating the petition in the dorms as it is considered soliciting.

McOmber asked if information could be put in the packets to be picked up for registration.

It has to be cleared with Phil Bain, Director, Admissions and Records, first.

Heald asked if there was anything more to report on the impact and telephone committees.

The committees are working on getting information together. They have ran into a few problems but will have it together.

STUDENTS FOR JUSTICE FACT SHEET-

I. U.M. is presently facing the prospects of the most significant "facelifting" of its history.

A. Due to inadequate Legislative financing, the school is being forced to cut atleast 50 faculty members and possibly up to 75 supporting staff depending on the level of pay of those cut.

1. Students are faced with the situation of paying ever increasing fees at an institution where the number of course offerings may be depleted by 500-600 next year.

2. Citizens are faced with the prospect of sending more of their children out of state for quality education.

B. To avoid random faculty cuts by cutting according to a "last in, first out" process, a program review was instigated.

1. The program review, although influenced by exterior accreditation standards, could not consider how programs could be improved, but only how they could be cut most economically.

2. The review process, lasting some six months, has recommended faculty reductions which should alarm Montanans interested in the future of higher education in the state.

a. Of the 29.5 net recommended cuts, 25.5 or 86% are to occur in the College of Arts and Sciences.

b. Over half are to be taken from the six humanities disciplines.

3. There is no question that historically, U.M. has been Montana's only Liberal Arts oriented university.

a. The humanities at U.M. are of a quality unparalleled in regional schools.

b. All of U.M.'s professional schools depend heavily on the College for support and "rounding out" their student's education.

4. U.M. has an obligation to maintain this tradition in spite of fluctuations in popularity.

a. U.M. is committed to the idea that the university is not a marketplace for technicians or bureaucrats, but a total environment dedicated to the cultivation of all aspects of an individual's personality.

ARM YOURSELF WITH THE FACTS

b. We are committed to the idea of keeping open educational opportunity for all sorts of Montanans, including those who wish to receive a well-rounded liberal arts education as opposed to a professional training.

c. Programs at U.M. must be stable if they are to retain credibility to students, rather than fluctuating with popular demand.

C. The recommendations of UM's program review do not even come close to the number of faculty slated for termination at the compulsion of legislative intent.

1. Entire programs will have to be eliminated.

a. Though program review has not yet established its list of program termination priorities, it has delineated thirteen programs, which are "numerically vulnerable" to total curtailment, including: i. Health and Physical Education, ii. Humanities, iii. Home Economics, iv. Religious Studies, v. Social Work, vi. Radio and Television, vii. Chinese, viii. Italian, ix. Latin and Greek, x. Journalism, xi. Pharmacy, xii. Music.*

2. Many of these programs are either unique to UM, of a higher quality at UM, than elsewhere in the system, or of central importance to UM's role as the state's liberal arts center.

3. The final priority list will be given to President Bowers soon, and he will present it to the Board of Regents for consideration at their December meeting in Helena.

a. The question of program elimination is a system wide one that will force the regents to finally consider the problem of program duplication from unit to unit.

4. It should be very clear that what is happening to UM will affect higher education in the state for years to come.

a. The chances for a downward spiral are high.

i. Curtailment of programs will reduce the number of students, necessitating even higher tuition fees, probably even lower student to faculty ratios, and hence further cutbacks in faculty.

II. Students, faced with the immediate and severe consequences of such drastic faculty cuts, reduced course offerings, program eliminations, and higher fees, have reacted to the crisis by seeking alternatives in the way of external funds.

PRC has voted unanimously not to recommend any program elimination.

A. This means either a supplemental appropriation promise by the Legislative Interim Finance Committee and Governor Judge, or a special session of the legislature.

1. The first requires taking a risk President Bowers is not yet willing to take. We would have to depend on the 1979 legislative session to approve the supplemental.

2. The second is a task of such scope students are hesitant to pursue it.

3. None the less students feel an alternative must be found.

a. We do not wish to steal funds from the other units, so the source must be external.

b. Thus, we are compelled to push for a special session of the legislature.

4. We feel that the costs and risks involved in actually making the cuts, far outweigh those involved in attempts to avoid making them.

a. Legal suits stemming from cutting tenured faculty will probably cost the system tens of thousands of dollars.

b. The flow of new ideas and information to students will be severely retarded if only the younger, untenured faculty members are eliminated, not to mention that this course of action would require that a much larger number will have to go because of their lower average salaries.

c. The elimination of programs may force UM students out of state and probably will not result in a higher overall student:faculty ratio.

d. The drastic reduction of the College of Arts and Sciences will leave Montana void of a sound link with its state, national and world heritage.

5. Speaking generally, it is safe to say that rebuilding UM over the next few decades will be a difficult and expensive process.

a. If the tenure system is not honored, it will be impossible to attract quality educators to UM for years to come, and those who do come will expect higher pay.

b. The cost of keeping UM on its feet now, after internal adjustments have been made, is estimated at $400,00 to $800,00.

B. A student group, Students for Justice, has spearheaded the University's attempt to preserve quality well-rounded education for the state.

1. Members of the group have generated University wide support through letters, rallies and other media events.

a. They have met with Governor Judge, The Interim Finance Committee, The Fiscal Analyst, The Commissioner of Higher Education, and President Bowers attempting to gain access to the entire story behind UM's troubles.

2. Governor Judge is extremely sympathetic to the University's plight.

a. He points out that had his recommended budget been approved, the University system would have $4.7 million more than what was finally appropriated.

b. Though he claims to have supported his recommendation diligently, it did not succeed and he did not line item veto the final appropriation figure.

i. Members of the Legislature tend to blame his Homestead Relief Bill for draining University resources.

c. The governor regards budgeting according to a 19:1 student faculty ratio "ridiculous," saying that by advocating this the fiscal analyst is making state policy decisions with his formulae.

d. He says he will approve a supplemental appropriation if requested by the Interim Finance Committee, or call a special session if he is assured it will win.

3. In their recent meeting with the Interim Finance Committee, considered by most to be among the University's most formidable antagonists, the group was well received and consider the outcome very positive.

a. The committee broke all precedent when they extended discussion of the matter one and one half hours beyond the hour and a half scheduled on the agenda.

i. One member speculates that the group was received by the Committee better than any other in their four year history.

ii. Most observers agree that the group's presentation was probably the most effective communique ever between the University and the Legislature.

b. The Committee has recognized that the situation facing UM is a highly problematic, and are concerned.

i. They seem to agree that a 19:1 student-faculty ratio which does not take into consideration, level and inherent expense of programs is too simple ii. The simplicity of 19:1 is reflected in the fact that if the "average" UM student would increase his course load from 14 to 16 credit hours per quarter, our student to faculty ratio would reach 19:1.

iii. They admit that their budgeting procedures are an attempt to manipulate the constitutionally autonomous Board of Regents into effecting specific policies.

c. The legislature wants the Regents to move in the direction of accountability and efficiency.

i. This means both developing an equitable, reasonable, and well-researched method of estimating university fiscal needs. The Regents would also need to deal directly with the problem of program duplication throughout the educational system.

ii. They seem to recognize the Financial constraints imposed by an overextended university system in a state with a low tax base, but contend that they are historically and politically bound to an inefficient Montana University system.

d. The Committee invited Students For Justice, Commissioner Pettit, and UM President Bowers back for their next meeting for a status report on UM's plight.

4. Commissioner Pettit, speaking for the Regents, claims that a system-wide program review is in process.

a. Each unit is presently preparing a "mission" statement, in lieu of which their programs will be evaluated.

i. Though reviews at other campuses will most likely span a much greater time period than UM's, they will not be nearly as intensive, as the other units are not operating under such harsh financial pressures.

b. He says that the state's present problems with program duplication were inherited from the mismanagement of the previous Board.

c. The Board sees itself as politically bound to follow legislative intent unquestionably.

i. Though the constitutionality of the appropriations bill is highly questionable, they feel that to uphold the constitution would be further antagonizing an already hostile legislature.

ii. They seek to implement the 19:1 at UM on schedule.

5. President Bowers is probably in the most difficult position of his career.

a. He is obligated on the one hand, to live within his budget, and on the other, to preserve quality state education.

b. He has several alternatives which may reduce the number of cuts to fifty.

i. Summer session of school may be trimmed.

ii. The athletic program may be economized.

iii. Faculty sabbatical leaves may be eliminated.

iv. The faculty's cost of living allowance may be either cut back or eliminated.

c. President Bowers has called on the Regents to institute an immediate and intensive system-wide program review so as to allow comparison of programs between UM and the other units.

i. Only after this is done, can the results of UM's program review be interpreted in such a way as to allow constructive trimming of programs.

ii. If MSU's College of Arts and Sciences, for example, proves to be declining in enrollment, and with a low student to faculty ratio, UM's may look very good, even economically.

6. The Students' dilemma:

So here we students sit, watching our education deteriorate before our eyes. The number of course offerings in our major fields, especially for those in humanities, will be dwindling, while the cost of attending is going up and up. For those of us who are juniors in some program up for possible elimination, there is a possibility that our three years has been useless - next year the program may be gone. Departments will be lacking in specialists, and the "newest blood" will most likely be the first to be cut, cheating us, in a sense, of our opportunity to keep up with new ideas and developments. If tenured faculty are cut, the University may be "blacklisted" by other universities in the country and our degree will have little credibility. It would certainly be harder for us to draw any more good faculty members here.

The Governor tells us he sympathizes with us, and points the finger at the fiscal analyst and the legislature. They tell us that the regents are to blame and that Governor Judge could have line-item vetoed the appropriation had he seriously wanted his budget request implemented. The Regents point their finger at their predecessors, at a supposedly anti-education, insensitive legislature, and at an unsupportive governor.

All agree that there is a serious problem, but no one will make the initial move to solve it, choosing rather, to satisfy themselves by assuring us that they are not to blame. We students couldn't care less about "Who done it" - we are interested in finding a solution, i.e., in securing enough external funds to allow UM more time to fit into the 19:1, allow the Regents more time, to come up with an adequate budgeting formula, and allow the other units to carry out their program reviews so that trimming inefficiency in programs can proceed in an orderly and productive fashion.

We urge you to join us in our efforts to secure a majority of the legislators' votes so that a special session may be called to alleviate this madness. Please keep in mind that we are not asking all that much, and what would be preserved is well worth it - what is at stake is quality post-secondary education for the State of Montana, and the opportunities for Montanans to get an education which goes beyond professional training on a level compatible with other schools in this country.

Is this treatment deserving of an institution with

- 1) the largest number of Rhodes Scholars of any school west of the Mississippi,
- 2) a business school second in the nation behind Harvard in producing students who pass the CPA exam on the first try,
- 3) a forestry school of high national prominence,
- 4) an Intensive Humanities program which attracts students from across the nation,
- 5) a strong commitment to provide Montana with the option of a high quality liberal arts education?
